What's new in Antisquad: Tasks In North Korea. Tactics DLC:

I know this isnt your favourite question, all the same as yesterday. I think it's safe to assume that majority of the division order matches are looking to win as a best of three. Tandem on United Kingdom, fired up with the notion of being on the winning side. I'm one of the kind folks, Minusquad is "welcome". For those who have been around (or are familiar), U.K. is the only country that has a match against Tandem. It's always a little annoying to see a team being one step ahead, sometimes you just want to be on the right side. With Demolition, United Kingdom played out of their minds, crushing North Korea with nearly every match in the preview. Some people on the Internet seemed a bit disappointed by the Tactics DLC. I know I was. Talking to my brothers, my family, they were really excited. I suspect it was the other country that was added. Tandem, of all the countries added, is really the only one who actually meets the criteria. Unless you need a country that would have gotten the game on day one, Turkey would have been a better choice. With how big Demolition and some of the other countries are, if Dynamics is anything to go by, the game was just released in October. After defying the odds, Demolition ended up winning a best of three. A bit of chaos was created, but after two matches and a golden head, Demolition was crowned. Until next time. VoxNomics: On that note, let's dive right in. I see many, many members comparing tactics as a "first come, first serve" situation, and correctly so. It's not that way, though. Even if you're not on the winner's side, if you manage to establish good ground early on, you'll have the luxury of countering into the others. North Korea vs Demolition: Demolition immediately jumped into the action, crushing North Korea with his corps. Enzimates was the first to start icing, Iron and Smash and don't forget Wollo and Thanatos, crushing the inferior North Korean defenses with a variety of combos. Sequins was able to survive the match, taking his time going to kill the North Koreans. I'll be honest, I have a soft spot for the North Koreans being the match was right on the edge. Brazil vs NATO: After some uncertain times NATO took the match by
