Ntlea 086 Beta

ntlea 086 beta ntlea 086 beta iD ntlea 086 beta jD A: Since you used the command: msiexec /uninstall /qb /a "C:\Program Files\Intel\iCLS Client\uninstall.exe" /f "D:\Internet\2008\iCLS Client\iCLS Client Default\iCLS Service.msi" I assume that this is Windows XP 64bit, as the Intel client utilities can't be installed for 32bit Windows. My guess is that the 64bit Intel manager is stored in the same directory as the uninstall, resulting in the installer trying to find the uninstalled 64bit Intel manager. The workaround in this case would be to run msiexec /uninstall /qb /a "C:\Program Files\Intel\iCLS Client\uninstall.exe" /f "D:\Internet\2008\iCLS Client\iCLS Client Default\iCLS Service.msi" instead and see if that works. If that doesn't work, try to use start /runinstall. This will load the Intel driver (regardless of the OS type) and attempt to uninstall the client. Q: I can't seem to solve this problem with redstone and a moving piston So I'm making a steam powered fence, and I want to make the piston keep shooting water at a set direction, but I can't seem to figure out how to control the direction it shoots. Can you help? And this is my current setup. (I already tried calling water_release_check directly, but as you can see, it doesn't do anything. I don't know if I'm supposed to use a different command or what.) A: You need to place an ItemStripe at the start of the pipe . Place water dispenser to make it automatically start when you place it . Then make the piston shoot when the pipe has at least one block of water in it, and is not full Then place a piston and water valve on the other end of the pipe to stop the piston once the pipe is full .
