Trump Hotel and Tower, a charge that also carries a possible jail sentence and a $10,000 fine, the Manhattan district attorney's office said on Tuesday. Kathryn Virginia Schulz, 47, of Camden, on Nov. 5 allegedly forced the man to perform oral sex on her, the office said. Police arrested Schulz a day later at the Trump Tower after being tipped off, police said. Schulz, who has no prior criminal record, faces charges including one count of third-degree sodomy and one count of second-degree unlawful imprisonment, which carry a potential prison sentence of up to seven years, the office said. Between Nov. 19 and Nov. 21, police said Schulz "manhandled and/or sexually assaulted" the victim on seven separate occasions in the hotel. The man told police that Schulz "approached him in the hotel and began to engage in sexual advances," according to court papers. The man said he then left the hotel and called police, police said. On Nov. 19, police said, Schulz followed the man into the concierge area of the hotel and began assaulting the man, 1cdb36666d
