While there, she is taken on a adventure, to rescue her friends. During the adventure you will gather items and solve mysteries. Please click the link below for the full backstory. (View spoiler) The Story. You are invited to the mansion of Lava. You are a new student of the Lava school, and are now taking your first exam. The floor of the building is made of Lava. An elevator inside the building takes you up to the classroom. All the kids are waiting, and for the very first time in your school life, you can feel a real high school atmosphere. On the first day of the school year, the headmaster gives a speech about the rule of the school. Because of this rule, you will not be able to leave the school for the next four years. Unfortunately, on the very first day, you open a door and see that the hallway is filled with lava. After that door, you start the adventure. Along the path of the adventure, you meet various characters, and a lot of quests and mysteries begin to unfold. After solving each mystery, you may receive a new ability. The items which you obtain as a reward can be used in later stages. In each stage, you solve mysteries and gain levels. After you reach the level cap, you will be able to go to the next stage, and so on. The educational content is minimal and focused on making your adventure meaningful. This game is not just an idle game, you can enjoy playing while thinking about your life as a student. After you finish the game, there is a "Mark of Lava" which shows the level which you reached. If the marker reaches the limit, the door to the next stage will unlock. xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx Any updates will be announced in this thread. xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx P.S. This is a work in progress. I might not be able to maintain it if I continue from here. If you are interested in making this game better, feel nd ranked Goalkeeper, saved a penalty kick from PK). July 1 The Rassvet Team began this round with a fourth consecutive defeat. July 5 The President Rassvet saw his side retain the top spot in the table for the second month. He commented "For the time being, it is good to be champion of players, but the tournament is far from over. So, I don't want to think about being champions of money right now, but I want to enjoy this victory and the next round is not far away." He also explained: "As we have strengthened our team, we should become more secure and we need to find a new strategy for the next round." July 7 The Bandy Team made the most of its excellent teamwork to beat the Governmental team Bandy by a score of 1-3. July 11 The Rassvet Team finished its match against the Oslo Team, scoring 4-0. Q: How to understand given correction for a frequency shift in frequency domain? I'm struggling to understand the following study from a colleague. I understand the correction for the time domain should be -0.239, however I cannot understand the correction for the frequency domain. Particularly: I understand the sin wave is not a function of time, so I'm confused as to how (235/1000) should evaluate to the negative of 0.239. Secondly, how do I understand what the sin wave should look like in the frequency domain such that it would relate to 0.239. Can you use a table or example to help demonstrate?

A: The sin sine wave is a function both of time and frequency. If we take 0.2 as the maximum value of the sin wave at a given frequency

(which is the frequency domain - the graph that you show in your example, which is frequency vs. amplitude), we can say that $\sin(235\pi/1000) \approx 0.2$, and thus $\sin 235\pi/1000 = -0.2$, which is your correction factor. The peak of the function at the top of your plot is at 235 kHz. We can say that the peak amplitude is 0.2 in our example, so the amplitude of the sin wave at the frequency of 235 kHz is 0.2. If a sin wave of amplitude 0.2 is at a frequency of 235 kHz, then the peak of the sine wave at the point in time 0 seconds is 0.2, and at the point in time 235 seconds, 0.2, and this is your correction factor. If you were to plot the function $f(t)$ against time instead of amplitude vs. frequency, you would get a similar shape to the graph you have shown, so there is really no difference between the amplitudes of the two graphs. Hope this helps!
